Teaching Historical and Current Events from Multiple Perspectives

The Korean War and Six-Party Talks

Lin Lin
State University of New York, Cortland

Yali Zhao
Georgia State University

Masato Ogawa
Indiana University Kokomo

John D. Hoge
University of Georgia

Comparing international history textbooks creates a perfect opportunity for students to see the complexity and controversy of history interpretation of certain events. Such a critical comparative approach helps students understand how people in different countries perceive and interpret the Korean War, its aftermath, and its effects on current international relationships. In this article, we suggest that teachers approach the Korean War and the Six-Party Talks in two ways: Six-Party Discussion Table motivation activities and analysis of middle school history textbook excerpts about the Korean War in the six countries. Detailed lesson plans and handouts are provided for teachers to facilitate these discussions. These include the directions and procedures for the activities, teachers' guide, suggested answers, textbook excerpts from the United States, and textbook excerpts translated into English China, Japan, Russia, North Korea, and South Korea.

Introduction

“The Korean War is an unattractive task which most Americans are more than happy to have slip through the cracks of history.”

~ Joseph Goulden

“Technically, the Korean War continues today, as only an armistice agreement halted the fighting in 1953. The Korean peninsula remains one of the world’s most dangerous flash points, and the West knows less about the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea (North Korea) than about any other nation on earth. The intentions and behavior of its leaders remain shrouded in mystery. To maintain the uneasy armistice, some 37,000 U.S. troops remain in the Republic of Korea. A solution to the Korean problem seems as far off as ever.”

~ Spencer Tucker

On December 12, 2008, China Daily reported, “the six parties involved in the Korean Peninsula nuclear talks concluded their latest round of negotiations Thursday without registering substantive progress.” On the previous day, Christopher R. Hill, the Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs lamented,

We had some very ambitious plans for this round. Unfortunately, we are not able to complete some of the things we wanted to do. ... I would say there was a lot of agreement really among a majority of the delegations there, but ultimately the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea (DPRK) was not ready... really to reach a verification protocol with all the standards that are required.” (Retrieved from http://www.state.gov/p/eap/regional/c15455.htm)

In the past four years, news about the Six-Party Talks has frequently appeared as headlines in media around the world. Not many people know what the Six-Party Talks is about and why these nations got involved in DPRK’s attempt to develop nuclear weapons.

The Six-Party Talks concerning the DPRK’s nuclear program include the United States, North Korea, China, Japan, Russia and South Korea, countries that once directly or indirectly got involved in the Korean War during 1951-1953. The Six-Party Talks began in August 2003 as a multilateral approach to ending North Korea’s nuclear program. There have been a series of meetings with six participating states each year since 2003.

In 1994, North Korea and the United States signed a nuclear agreement in Geneva. North Korea pledged to freeze and eventually dismantle its nuclear weapons program in exchange for international aid to build two power-producing nuclear reactors. In 1999, President Clinton agreed to the first significant reduction of economic sanctions against North Korea since the Korean War ended in 1953. In January 2003, however, North Korea declared its withdrawal from the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (Statement of the DPRK Government on Withdrawal from Non-Proliferation Treaty 2003). Since August 2003, members of the Six-Party Talks have convened in Beijing for several rounds of negotiations aimed at curbing North Korea’s nuclear weapons program. The summits resulted in a joint statement in September 2005 in which the North Korean government promised to abandon its nuclear weapons program and go back to the Nonproliferation Treaty (Zissis & Bajoria, 2007). Yet, to the shock of the world, in July 2006, North Korea tested its ballistic missiles, and two months later, they tested a nuclear weapon.

North Korea, the last Cold War frontier, remained an isolated nation from the rest of the world until 1993 when it declared that it would withdraw from the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty, which was signed in 1985. The announcement marked North Korea’s first public declaration that it possessed nuclear weapons. Since the Korean War, which ended in an armistice in 1953, North Korea seems to have very little contact with the outside world by either mail, telephone, or internet. Therefore, North Korea, the Korean War, and how they are related to the Six-Party Talks all seem incomprehensible to most Americans and the rest of the world. In fact, the Korean War remained as the “Unknown War” or “Forgotten War” in the history of the United States even though the war was devastating to the countries involved (Blohm, 1999; Edwards, 2000; Tucker, 2000). During the three years of the war, approximately 3,000,000 Koreans were killed, wounded, or reported missing; 150,000 Chinese and 33,000 Americans also died; a further 220,000 Chinese and 92,000 Americans were wounded (Roberts, 2000). In addition, South Korea and North Korea have been divided into two countries ever since. As historian Spencer Tucker (2000) stated, “Technically, the Korean War continues today, as only an armistice agreement that halted the fighting in 1953. To maintain the uneasy armistice, some 37,500 U.S. troops are still stationed in South Korea today.”

Background

It is challenging to provide simplified background information of the Korean War. The ways we were educated, the cultures we grew up from, and the multiple perspectives we learned in our academic life have greatly influenced our narration and understanding of the Korean War. We will not hide our biases, which are always there when we interpret historical events. We see history not as a fixed set of facts, but as an interpretive process of debates, controversies, and conflicting issues (Loewen, 1995; Zinn & Macedo, 2005). Therefore, the background information of the Korean War we share here is at best one process of presenting the Korean War as a controversy.

Korea, as one nation with a long history, was under the colonial control of Japan at the beginning of 20th century. In 1945 when the WWII ended, the United Nations, under the dominant influences of the United States, divided Korea into two parts. The area of Korea to the north of the 38th degree north latitude, also known as 38th Parallel, was administered by the Soviet Union and the area south of the 38th Parallel was administered by the United States. The separation planted a seed that sprouted and would soon to lead to the outbreak of the Korean War. The two parts of Korea have been separated by this Cold War mentality ever since.

Political elections in North Korea and South Korea were dominated by Soviet and American influences after WWII. Despite opposition, each elected its own government by 1949 and in the same year, Soviet and American forces in Korea withdrew. Both the governments in North and South Korea wanted to reunite the peninsula under their own government. Around the 38th Parallel, North Korea, with the equipment provided by Soviet Union, was able to escalate border clashes. The American government interpreted the border conflicts as international aggression and called for the United Nations to intervene. Six countries were involved in the war, although Japan’s involvement was indirect serving only as an American air base. The result of the war hardened the continued division of the two Korean states (Tucker, 2000).

Teaching about the Korean War and Six-Party Talks

It is essential that historical facts and contemporary issues about other nations are included in school curriculum, and it is imperative that students understand the diversity of other nations (Becker, 1981). In fact, many social studies teachers infuse global perspectives into their instruction through teaching multiple and conflicting perspectives, integrating global issues within mandated content, organizing instruction through global themes, and asking issue-centered questions to encourage student inquiry (Merryfield & Wilson, 2005). North Korea is one of a handful of nations in the world that is immediately relevant to the United States. In fact, major U.S. television channels, newspapers, and journal publishers often cover negative aspects of North Korean society such as defections, starvation, corruption, missile launches, nuclear threats, and human rights. Beyond these well-documented facets, North Korean contemporary issues relating to the United States are not discussed in many classrooms (Ogawa & Tulley, 2008). Several teachers have developed lessons that help students understand North Korea and that ask issue-centered questions to encourage student inquiry, but the difficulty of obtaining accurate information about North Korea creates significant obstacles. Ogawa and Tulley (2008) found that some reasons why teachers do not include the study of North Korea in their curricula to a higher degree are either lack of time, lack of information, and/or the assumption that state standards only address the Korean War.

In this article, we suggest that teachers approach the Korean War and the Six-Party Talks in two ways: Six-Party Discussion Table motivation activities and analysis of middle school history textbook excerpts about the Korean War in the six countries and detailed lesson plans/handouts are provided for teachers to facilitate these discussions. These materials include the directions and procedures for the activities, teachers’ guide, suggested answers, and textbook excerpts translated into English from the United States, China, Japan, Russia, North Korea, and South Korea.
The Korean War and Six-Party Talks no doubt provide social studies teachers a challenging, yet perfect opportunity to teach about historical and current events from multiple perspective. The topic of the Korean War is significant and deserves continued study. Teachers should address rather than avoid the topic, because the Korean War was a turning point in twentieth-century history, the first shooting confrontation of the Cold War, the first limited war in the nuclear age, and the only time since WWII that two of the world's major military powers, the United States and China, have fought one another (Tucker, 2000). Teaching about the Korean War and current Six-Party Talks will definitely help students better understand how complex a historical event could be and how unsolved problems in the past could have a profound impact on the countries involved at that time and even today.

References

Print-based

Web-based

About the Authors

Lin Lin completed her Ph.D in Social Science Education at the University of Georgia. She is now an Assistant Professor at State University of New York (SUNY) in Cortland, New York. Her research focuses on strategies to create thoughtful and democratic classrooms through social studies instruction. Other research interests include multicultural teacher education, global education, and qualitative research methodology. As primary contact for this article, she can be reached at linlin@cortland.edu.

Yali Zhao is an Assistant Professor of Social Studies and Multicultural Education at Georgia State University. She has extensive teaching and research experience in both the U.S. and China. Her research interests include international and comparative education, multicultural education, and technology integration in social studies.

Masato Ogawa is an Assistant Professor of Secondary Education at Indiana University Kokomo. His research interests include learning and teaching of history, historical perspective-taking, comparative textbook analyses, multicultural education, international education and Japanese education.

John D. Hoge is an Associate Professor of Social Studies at the University of Georgia. His research interests have focused on children’s history learning and the intersection of history and citizenship education in national and international contexts. He is currently the state coordinator of Georgia’s We the People Program.

Citation for this Article
Appendix

Handout I

Motivational Activity: Welcome to a Six-Party Discussion about the Korean War

Welcome to the Six-Party Discussion Table. You are representing _______________ (name of one of the six countries) as a negotiation team at the Six-Party Discussion Table. As representatives from the country, please work with your negotiation team members to complete the task.

Task

Using encyclopedia and online sources, you and your team will research

a) Where your country is on a world map
b) Your country’s neighboring/nearby countries
c) The flag of your country, and its current leader
d) Current type of government of your country
e) Type of government of your country during the Korean War
Teacher’s Guide

Before students come into the classroom, set the table as if all students will be representing the six parties that will participate in the Six-Party Discussion to eliminate North Korean’s nuclear weapons program. The classroom should be set up as if they are coming into the “real” negotiation table representing the six nations involved in the Korean War and the current international affairs concerning the nuclear weapons program.

Six Parties refer to

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Countries</th>
<th>Official Name</th>
<th>Abbreviations</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>China</td>
<td>People’s Republic of China</td>
<td>PRC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>North Korea</td>
<td>Democratic People’s Republic of Korea</td>
<td>DPK</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>South Korea</td>
<td>Republic of Korea</td>
<td>ROK</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>United States</td>
<td>United States of America</td>
<td>USA</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Russia</td>
<td>Russian Federation</td>
<td>Russia *</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Japan</td>
<td>Japan</td>
<td>Japan</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

*During the Korean War, Russia was part of the Soviet Union

Objectives

Students will ---
- list the six countries that participate in the Six-Party Talks
- describe and identify flags of each country
- recognize current leaders for each country
- identify each country and its bordering countries, if any, on a world map
- describe the type of government of each country

Procedures

1) Give each student a card that specifies which country/party he or she will represent. At the table, students will then find their corresponding country members and sit down. More than one student should be assigned to each country.

Figure 1. The Classroom Table Arrangements
2) Using an encyclopedia and online sources, the students will research in teams

- Where your country is on a world map
- Your country’s neighboring countries, if any
- The flag of your country, and its current leader
- Current type of government of your country
- Type of your government during the Korean War

Suggested places to find answers

- Where each country is on a world map (Use a world map if available)
- Each country’s neighboring countries (Use a world map if available);
- The flags of each country (Flags of Russia Federation and the former Soviet Union are both provided) and its current leaders
- Current type of government of your country

Figure 2. Country Profile

| | | |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>North Korea</td>
<td>China</td>
<td>The Soviet Union</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Socialist</td>
<td>Socialist</td>
<td>Russia Federation (Federal Semi-Presidential Republic)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Republic</td>
<td>Republic</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chairman</td>
<td>President</td>
<td>President</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kim Jong-il</td>
<td>Hu Jintao</td>
<td>Dmitry Medvedev</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Prime Minister</td>
<td>Prime Minister</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Wen Jiabao</td>
<td>Vladimir Putin</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>South Korea</td>
<td>The United States</td>
<td>Japan</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Presidential</td>
<td>Constitutional</td>
<td>Parliamentary Democracy and Constitutional Monarchy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Republic</td>
<td>Federal</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>President</td>
<td>Presidential</td>
<td>Emperor</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lee Myung-bak</td>
<td>Republic</td>
<td>Akihito</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>President</td>
<td>Prime Minister</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Barack Obama</td>
<td>Yukio Hatoyama</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
- Type of your government during the Korean War (1950-1953).

Figure 3. Flags and Governments of Six Countries

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Type of Gov't Country</th>
<th>Current Type of Government</th>
<th>Type of government during the Korean War</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>North Korea</td>
<td>Communist state one-man dictatorship with Kim Jong-II as its head</td>
<td>Communist government with Kim Il-Jung as its head</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>China</td>
<td>Communist government with Hu Jintao as chairman</td>
<td>Communist government with Mao Tse-tung as chairman</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Russia</td>
<td>Russian Federation with Dmitry Medvedev as president</td>
<td>Russia was part of the former USSR during the Korean War.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>South Korea</td>
<td>Republic President Lee Myung-bak</td>
<td>Republic President Syngman Rhee</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The United States</td>
<td>Constitution-based federal republic; strong democratic tradition with President Barack Obama</td>
<td>Constitution-based federal republic; strong democratic tradition with President Harry Truman and President Dwight Eisenhower</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Japan</td>
<td>Constitutional monarchy with a parliamentary government Taro Aso as prime minister</td>
<td>Constitutional monarchy with a parliamentary government Shigeru Yoshida as prime minister</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Handout II

Objectives of Six-Party Talks

Objective

Students will present objectives of each of the six countries involved in the Six-Party Talks about the North Korean nuclear program

Procedure

- Students will remain as representatives of their country and continue with their group research.
- Students will research the objectives of their country in the Six-Party Talks.
- Students will summarize their research results in no more than 100 words. Use the following table to record what they find out as a group.

Figure 4. Worksheet for Group Summary: Objectives of Six-Party Talks

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Country</th>
<th>Group Summary: Objectives of Your Country in Six-Party Talks</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>North Korea</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>China</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Russia</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>South Korea</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The United States</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Japan</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Students will present the objectives of their country to the class while the class fills in the remaining spaces in their chart.

Figure 5. Teacher’s Guide: Objectives of each of the six countries involved in the Six-Party Talks

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Country</th>
<th>Group Summary: Objectives of Your Country in Six-Party Talks</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>North Korea</td>
<td>The North Korean government led by Kim Jong-Il seeks a nonaggression security pledge from the United States. North Korea also wants normalized relations with Washington and to be removed from the U.S. State Department’s list of state sponsors of terrorism. North Korea wants access to economic aid from other Six-Party countries.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>China</td>
<td>Beijing serves as Pyongyang’s most long-standing ally and main trading partner, and has used its influence with the Kim regime to bring North Korea to the Six-Party negotiating table. China’s ability to play such a role in the talks boosts its relations with Washington. Like South Korea, China fears a rush of refugees across its border and has provided North Korea with energy and food assistance. Beijing has been resistant to implementing stringent United Nations’ resolutions imposing sanctions against Pyongyang. North Korea also serves as a buffer zone between China and U.S. troops in South Korea.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Russia</td>
<td>Moscow’s position at the table allows Russia, also concerned with refugee flows, to reassert its influence in Northeast Asia. Russia has joined China in warning against cornering North Korea with harsh sanctions.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>South Korea</td>
<td>Frozen in an unresolved conflict with North Korea, South Korea seeks to avoid a sudden regime change in Pyongyang that would force it to bear the economic burden of a large, sudden influx of refugees across its border. Many young South Koreans see their neighbors as poor cousins, and Seoul has taken a softer approach than has Washington to Pyongyang. This warming of inter-Korean relations, known as the “Sunshine Policy,” involves South Korean aid as well as economic projects. The Kaesong industrial complex and tourism to North Korea’s Mount Kumgang are two examples of an improved relationship.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The United States</td>
<td>For Washington, the Six-Party Talks serve as a means to make North Korea’s nuclear weapons program a multinational problem rather than an issue to be solved through bilateral action. Although Washington worries about the Communist state’s poor human rights record, the chief U.S. concern remains Pyongyang’s nuclear program and possible sale of nuclear materials and technology to hostile states and terrorist groups. As part of any agreement, Washington wants the reclusive state to accept the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) monitors in the country.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Japan</td>
<td>Tokyo worries over North Korea’s provocative testing of missiles that could reach Japan’s population centers or U.S. military bases there. But Japan also sees the Six-Party Talks as a forum for negotiating an admission of Pyongyang’s guilt in the 1970s and 1980s abductions of Japanese citizens by North Korean spies. The issue serves as a divisive point in the U.S.-Japan alliance as Tokyo does not want Washington to remove North Korea from its state sponsors of terrorism list until the abduction question is resolved. Meanwhile, Pyongyang has demanded at times that Tokyo not participate in the talks.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Handout III

Reasons for Involvement in the Korean War in 1950-1953

Objective

Students will explain why their country got involved in the Korean War in 1950-1953

Procedures

- Students will continue as representatives of their country
- Make enough copies of history textbook excerpts for members in each group (available in this Handout IV. Textbook Excerpts A to F)
- Students will read as a group and explain why their country got involved in the Korean War in 1950-1953 based on their textbook reading;
- Students will summarize their group explanation and write in no more than 100 words using the following table to fill in what they find out as a group;
- Students will present and explain their country’s involvement in the Korean War.

Figure 6. Worksheet: Reasons for Involvement in the Korean War

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Country</th>
<th>Why Did Your Country Get Involved in the Korean War in 1950-1953?</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>North Korea</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>China</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Soviet Union</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>South Korea</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The United States</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Japan</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Teacher’s Guide

Please note that each country argues from its own perspective. Students should be viewing the Korean War from the perspective of the country they are representing. The perspective they are taking in this task should not be their personal perspectives. Their personal perspectives should only be shared later after the task is completed and debriefed.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Country</th>
<th>Why Did Your Country Get Involved in the Korean War in 1950-1953?</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>North Korea</td>
<td>The United States, backed by South Korean forces, invaded North Korea. Their attack threatened our country. Enemies must be eliminated and our people had to be saved.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>China</td>
<td>The United States attacked the North Korean forces and threatened the national security of China, which borders with North Korea. China formed “People’s Volunteer Army” to participate in the Korean War.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Soviet Union</td>
<td>We did not get directly involved by sending troops over to North Korea. We signed an agreement with North Korea stating that if North Korea got involved with South Korea in military conflicts, we will support North Korea. In the Korean War, we supported North Korea by providing military training, weapons, and moral support.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>South Korea</td>
<td>North Korea began their southward aggression along the 38th parallel. Taken by surprise by these unexpected attacks, South Korea fought back to defend the liberty of their country.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>United States</td>
<td>We saw the attacks of North Korea against South Korea as an expanding communist aggression against the rest of the world. We asked the UN Security Council to denounce the North Korean military action as illegal and as a threat to peace. The UN decided to help South Korea. The UN Army constituted of the armies of 16 countries – among them the United States – joined the South Korean forces in the battle against their Northern counterparts.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Japan</td>
<td>We did not get directly involved by sending troops over to North Korea. During the war, American bases on the main islands of Japan and on Okinawa were used, and a vast amount of military supplies was procured in Japan. Therefore, Japan received economic benefits from the United States going to war. As a result, the Japanese economy experienced an upswing and quickly recovered from the recession after the WWII.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Handout IV

Textbook Excerpt A (Translated from North Korean History Textbook)

Directions: As representatives from North Korea, you, as a group, will read the textbook excerpt and answer questions. Please analyze the following passages and summarize the causes of the Korean War.

Upset by the fast and astonishing growth of the power of the Republic, the American invaders hastened the preparation of an aggressive war in order to destroy it in its infancy.

The American imperialists furiously carried out the war project in 1950. The American imperialist called the traitor Syngman Rhee to Japan and gave him the order to hurry the war, while frequently sending warmongers to the South in order to survey the preparation of the war.

The American invaders who had been preparing the war for a long time, alongside their puppets, finally initiated the war on June 25th of 1950. That dawn, the enemies unexpectedly attacked the North half of the Republic, and the war clouds hung over the once peaceful country, accompanied by the echoing roar of cannons.

Having passed the 38th parallel, the enemies crawled deeper and deeper into the North half of the Republic. A grave menace drew near our country and our people. His Excellency, the great leader of the Republic, had a crucial decision to make – the invading forces of the enemies had to be eliminated and the threatened fate of our country and our people had to be saved.

Questions

What are the causes of the Korean War from the perspective of this passage?

What other information would you like to know about the causes of the Korean War from the North Korean perspective?

Textbook Excerpt B (Translated from South Korean History Textbook)

Directions: As representatives from South Korea, you, as a group, will read the textbook excerpt and answer questions. Please analyze the following passages and summarize the causes of the Korean War.

When the overthrow of the South Korean government through social confusion became too difficult, the North Korean communists switched to a stick-and-carrot strategy: seeming to offer peaceful negotiations, they were instead analyzing the right moments of attack and preparing themselves for it.

The North insisted on political negotiations between the leaders of the South and the North aiming toward a constitution of a unified government, and openly publicized their policy. By that time, the American forces stationed in the South withdrew and announced that the peninsular would be excluded in America’s first line of defense in the Far East. Taking advantage of this situation, the North Korean communists prepared themselves for war. Kim Il-sung secretly visited the Soviet Union and was promised the alliance of the Soviets and China in case of war.

Finally, at dawn on June 25th, 1950 the North began their southward aggression along the 38th parallel. Taken by surprise by these unexpected attacks, the army of the Republic of Korea (South Korean) fought courageously to defend the liberty of the country. However, with the lack of soldiers and equipment, Seoul had to surrender and the South Korean forces were forced to retreat to a battle line south of the Nak-dong river. The armed provocation of the North Korean communists brought the UN Security Council around the table. A decree denounced the North Korean military action as illegal and as a threat to peace, and a decision was made to help the South. The UN army constituted of the armies of 16 countries – among them the United States, Great Britain, and France – joined the South Korean forces in the battle against the North.

Questions

What are the causes of the Korean War from the perspective of this passage?

What other information would you like to know about the causes of the Korean War from the South Korean perspective?

Teacher’s Note: This passage is selected from Kim, Dooin’s Korean History: Senior High. Seoul: Dae Han Textbook Co., 2001, p. 199.
Handout IV

Textbook Excerpt C (Translated from China’s History Textbook)

Directions: As representatives from China, you, as a group, will read the textbook excerpt and answer questions. Please analyze the following passages and summarize the causes of the Korean War.

In June, 1950, the war between North Korea and South Korea broke out. The United States undauntedly invaded North Korea with forces. The so-called “United Nation’s Troops” with the U.S. troops as its mainstay crossed the 38th parallel and charged towards Yalu River at the Chinese border. American military airplanes invaded the Chinese territory, bombing and shooting the bordering cities in northeast of China. The U.S. 7th Fleet invaded the Taiwan Straits of China to prevent the Chinese People’s Liberation Army to liberate Taiwan. The invasion of the United States gravely threatened the security of China.

The Democratic People’s Republic of Korea requested Chinese government to send troops to aid them. At the request for aid from North Korea to fight against the United States, in October 1950, the Chinese People’s Volunteer Troops, known as Chinese People’s Volunteers in China, decided to defend and protect their homeland from being invaded. Under the leadership of Dehuai Peng as the Commander-in-chief, Chinese soldiers arrived in the frontlines of North Korea and fought against the U.S. aggressors with people and army from North Korea.

Questions

What are the causes of the Korean War from the perspective of this passage?

What other information would you like to know about the causes of the Korean War from the Chinese perspective?

Teacher’s Note: This is a passage selected from the Chinese Textbook entitled “Chinese History”. People’s Education Press. 2002, 7-11.
Handout IV

Textbook Excerpt D (Selected from American History Textbook)

Directions: As representatives from the United States, you, as a group, will read the textbook excerpt and answer questions. Please analyze the following passages and summarize the causes of the Korean War.

In June 1950, North Korea forces crossed the 38th parallel into South Korea. The conflict that followed became known as the Korean War. President Truman viewed Korea as a test case for his containment policy. He responded promptly. The United States appealed to the United Nations (UN) to stop the Communist move into South Korea. Sixteen nations provided soldiers for a UN force. However, U.S. troops made up most of the force and did most of the fighting. General Douglas MacArthur, former World War II hero in the Pacific, served as commander of all UN forces.

In early fighting, the North Koreans pushed the South Koreans back almost to Pusan. This city was on the southeastern tip of the Korean peninsular. MacArthur reversed the situation by landing his troops at Incheon. This was a port city behind the North Korean lines. It was a daring, dangerous plan, but it worked.

Squeezed between enemy troops coming at them from the north and south, the North Korean soon retreated across the 38th parallel. General MacArthur requested permission of his superiors to pursue the enemy into North Korea. The UN and President Truman agreed. The president hoped the invasion might lead to a reunion of the two Koreas. The UN forces pushed northward beyond the 38th parallel (latitude) toward the Yalu River, the boundary separating China from North Korea. The Chinese warned them to stop.

Questions

What are the causes of the Korean War from the perspective of this passage?

What other information would you like to to know about the causes of the Korean War from the perspective of the United States?

Teacher’s Note: Please feel free to assign your students to read their textbook pages about the Korean War. This is a passage selected the U.S. Textbook entitled “Creating America: A history of the United States. (2005). McDougal Littell. 795-797.
Handout IV

Textbook Excerpt E (Translated from Japanese History Textbook)

Directions: As representatives from Japan, you, as a group, will read the textbook excerpt and answer questions. Please analyze the following passages and summarize the causes of the Korean War.

While the Cold War was worsening, war finally broke out in 1950 between the Republic of Korea and the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea (the Korean War). As the North Korean army advanced southward rapidly, the U.N. Security Council, with the Soviet Union delegate absent, decided to give military support to South Korea. The United Nations forces, consisting mainly of United States troops, advanced northward to near the Chinese-Korean border. China sent a powerful volunteer army to North Korea. Subsequently, fierce battles raged around the 38th parallel; in 1953, a cease-fire agreement was concluded at long last.

During the Korean War, American bases on the main island of Japan and on Okinawa were used, and a vast amount of military supplies were procured in Japan. The effect was an upswing in the Japanese economy and a speeding of recovery.

Questions

What are the causes of the Korean War from the perspective of this passage?

___________________________________________________________

Did Japan get involved in the Korean War directly by sending in troops?

___________________________________________________________

What other information would you like to know about the causes of the Korean War from the Japanese perspective?

___________________________________________________________

Teacher’s Note: This is a passage selected from Lindaman, D. & Ward K. (2004) History Lessons: How textbooks from around the world portray U.S. History p. 271. The particular passage was selected from Japanese Textbook entitled “Japan in Modern History”. Tokyo: International Society for Educational Information, 1994, 183. 185.
Handout IV

Textbook Excerpt F (Translated from Russian History Textbook)

Directions: As representatives from Russia, you, as a group, will read the textbook excerpt and answer questions. Please analyze the following passages and summarize the causes of the Korean War.

Originally, the division of Korea into two parts at the 38th parallel was designed as a temporary measure, intended to prevent clashes between Soviet and American troops fighting against the Japanese. Subsequently, the division was meant to designate the zones in which the two sides were responsible for normalization of civilian life and for the preparation of Korea’s population for self-government. Despite the temporary nature in which the break-up of Korea was designed, different approaches of the USA and USSR to post-war organization of life in their respective spheres of influence and the beginning of the Cold War and the conflicts between the superpowers that accompanied it led to a long-term change of the Korean peninsula into an area of competition between two ideologies and the forces that lay behind them.

The existence of two Korean states, each of which claimed to be the only lawful government of the whole peninsula, clearly created grounds for conflict between them. The 38th parallel became the site of frequent armed confrontations, which numbered 1,836 in 1949 alone and often included larger quantities of troops on both sides.

With the conditions of the conflict escalating, war finally broke out on June 25, 1950. The fighting took place with limited success for both sides. Large forces of American paratroopers and other soldiers were brought in to fight on the side of the South while Soviet military strategists and fighter pilots fought for North Korea. Furthermore, in October 1950, large units of Chinese “People’s Volunteers” also appeared to help the North.

By the end of 1950, both opposing armies situated the bulk of their forces along the 38th parallel. After that most of the fighting was contested bitterly along the parallel without major sustained territorial gains for either side. On July 27, 1953, a truce agreement was signed in Korea halting the three-year conflict between the two sides. Both Chinese and American troops remained on the Korean peninsula.

After the conflict, the two Koreas continued to follow their respective paths dictated by the superpowers that influenced them.

Questions:

What are the causes of the Korean War from the perspective of this passage?
Did Russia (formerly USSR) get involved in the Korean War directly by sending in troops?

What other information would you like to know about the causes of the Korean War from the perspective of the former Soviet Union?